Biography

Conor Krause is an associate attorney in the Alpharetta office of Hall Booth Smith, where he focuses his practice on general liability matters.

Prior to joining HBS as an associate, Conor served as a summer associate with the firm, conducting legal research, drafting memoranda and legal arguments, and preparing deposition summaries and case timelines to support attorneys in various litigation matters.

Conor also gained valuable legal experience through internships in corporate law and real estate. As a legal intern for a publicly traded company, he assisted with drafting and reviewing agreements, researching legal and corporate matters, and preparing materials for board and shareholder meetings. Additionally, he worked as a real estate intern, where he reviewed leases, prepared title summaries, and participated in negotiations between attorneys and clients.

Conor earned his Juris Doctor and a Certificate of Concentration in Sports Law from Tulane University Law School, where he served as Senior Business Editor of The Sports Lawyers Journal and
