Biography

Aaron Romanowski is an associate in the Hall Booth Smith Memphis office, where he focuses his practice on general liability, health care, medical malpractice, and premises liability matters. He represents clients through all phases of litigation and brings experience managing complex cases from initial evaluation through resolution.

Prior to joining the firm, Aaron practiced with Memphis-area litigation firms handling a high volume of personal injury matters. This experience gives him a unique perspective in the litigation process and the favorable resolution of matters.

Aaron earned his Juris Doctor from the Cecil C. Humphreys School of Law, where he served as Associate Justice of the Moot Court Board and was actively involved in several advocacy and leadership organizations, including the American Bar Association Moot Court Team and the International Law Jessup Moot Court Team. He received his Bachelor of Arts in Greek and Roman Studies from Rhodes College.

He has successfully handled appeals before the Supreme Court of Arkansas and the Fifth and Eighth Circuit Courts of Appeal, dozens
