Biography

Amitisse Noohi is an associate attorney in the firm's New York office whose practice focuses on the defense of healthcare providers in complex medical malpractice matters, as well as general liability litigation. Amitisse contributes to early liability and damages evaluation, expert coordination, and the implementation of litigation strategies aligned with client and carrier objectives, all while maintaining trial readiness. She also has experience in appellate and premises liability matters.

Prior to joining Hall Booth Smith, Amitisse practiced with a prominent New York defense firm, where she represented major hospital systems and healthcare providers in complex medical malpractice litigation. Her experience includes motion practice, legal and medical research, depositions, discovery, expert coordination, and trial preparation, and she has significant experience evaluating complex legal and factual issues. She has particular experience in motion practice, especially summary judgment motions, and worked diligently to help secure numerous favorable outcomes for clients, including voluntary dismissals and negotiated settlements.
