Biography

Jonathan Peak is an associate attorney in the Atlanta office of Hall Booth Smith, where he focuses his practice on general liability and transportation matters. He represents businesses, transportation and logistics companies, and other clients in civil litigation, drawing on significant experience managing complex matters involving personal injury, wrongful death and other sensitive legal issues.

Before joining Hall Booth Smith, Jonathan spent seven years at another local law firm representing and advising corporate clients on litigation and risk management matters. He led the non-party subpoena program for a global Fortune 500 logistics company, where he managed an eight-person team responsible for responding to a high volume of subpoenas involving records and deposition and trial testimony. His work required close collaboration with the client across its organization and included counseling on organizational governance, data privacy, cybersecurity, document production, and other complex and sensitive issues. He also helped implement processes and technology that significantly improved the efficiency and timeliness of the client's subpoena response program.

Jonathan's litigation experience includes defending clients in personal injury and breach of warranty matters, preparing and defending witnesses for depositions and trial testimony, and handling appellate matters. He also spent several years representing a major automobile manufacturer as national coordinating counsel for its warranty program. In that role, he worked with more than 50 local law firms across the country to develop litigation strategies, manage defensible claims, and pursue efficient resolutions when appropriate.

Earlier in his career, Jonathan maintained a broader civil practice that included corporate disputes, estate planning, and probate matters. His experience included representing corporate shareholders and directors in disputes involving allegations of breach of fiduciary duty, fraud, mismanagement, and misuse of corporate assets. He also represented estates in probate proceedings and counseled individuals and families on estate planning matters.

Jonathan earned his Juris Doctor from Liberty University School of Law and his bachelor's degrees in economics and political science from Virginia Tech.
