Biography

Katy Beth Crowe is an associate in the Birmingham office focusing on general liability, health care, and medical malpractice matters.

Before joining Hall Booth Smith, Katy Beth gained valuable legal experience through a series of externships and clerkships. She served as a legal extern for both The University of Alabama System Office of Counsel, where she worked on matters involving data privacy, employment, and athletics, and for Shipt, where she focused on commercial law and collaborated with teams across the country on compliance and risk management projects. She also interned for Chief Judge L. Scott Coogler of the U.S. District Court for the Northern District of Alabama, drafting judicial opinions and observing federal proceedings in areas such as healthcare fraud and sentencing.

During law school, Katy Beth also served as a summer associate at Hall Booth Smith and at another Birmingham law firm, where she gained hands-on experience in civil litigation, including healthcare and medical malpractice cases.

Katy Beth earned her Juris Doctor, cum laude, from The University of Alabama School of Law, where she served as Managing Editor of
