Biography

Michael S. Drew is a Partner in the firm's Denver office and specializes in medical malpractice, complex general casualty, construction defect, dental, personal injury, and other litigation matters. Mike has more than three decades of legal experience including significant jury trial and arbitration experience with cases involving catastrophic injury.

Previously, Mike was a shareholder at the regional law firm bearing his name, Nixon Shefrin Ogburn Drew, P.C., where he helped to grow the firm into one of the leading litigation defense firms in Denver before combining with Hall Booth Smith. As part of his early training, Mike attended the National Institute of Trial Advocacy (NITA) and earned certificates in the Deposition Skills and Trial Advocacy Skills programs. Prior to attending law school, he was an adjuster and senior adjuster for two professional liability insurers in Northern California.

American Jurisprudence Award. During law school, Mike practiced in the student law office under the Student Practice Act and undertook an extensive internship with the Arapahoe County Public Defender's office, gaining valuable trial, hearing, and litigation experience. He also holds a Bachelor of Arts from the University of Colorado.

Mike is a lifelong cyclist and has combined that passion with his support of The Children's Hospital of Colorado by raising money for the last 14 years at their Courage Classic cycling event. In honor of his Father's passing and to raise money for the Cincinnati Bar Assn where his father practiced for over 65 years, Mike completed the 2021 Maryland Ironman. Mike is active in contributing to his community and has been involved with the United Way of Denver, Big Brothers program, and other charitable endeavors.

Experience

Mike defends physicians and other health care providers in a wide variety of medical malpractice and regulatory matters, including the following selected cases:

- Tried two amputation cases and defended several others.
- Tried cases in obstetrical, general surgical, gastroenterology, orthopedics and other medical subspecialties.
- Handled assisted living and mental health care cases of all types.
- Tried and arbitrated several construction defect matters.

Additionally, his complex general casualty practice has included defending a wide range of personal injury matters from auto, truck, slip and fall, civil assault, dram shop, wrongful death, premises liability, and others. Mike's broad defense experience allows him to fairly evaluate cases and has resulted in excellent and efficient results in the best interest of his clients.
