Biography

Michael Williams is a partner with Hall Booth Smith in its professional liability, long-term care / aging services, and general liability practices. Michael concentrates his practice on a wide variety of matters involving high exposure catastrophic damage claims. Having handled numerous cases involving unique medical issues, he has demonstrated an ability to distill complex technical facts into simple concepts that are easily understood by juries.

Michael regularly defends health care providers in professional malpractice claims. In addition, he defends long-term care and group home facilities in negligence actions. He advises clients on risk management matters and assists with government or internal investigations related to alleged health care fraud and abuse.
