Biography

Rebekah Mabe is an associate in our Atlanta office, practicing in health care, medical malpractice, and workers' compensation matters.

Before joining HBS, Rebekah earned valuable court experience clerking for various judges, such as the Honorable Emily Richardson with the Fulton County Superior Court, the Honorable Elizabeth Gobeil with the Georgia Court of Appeals, and the Honorable Paul Bonapfel and Christopher Hawkins with the Federal Bankruptcy Court. She also served as a law clerk for a local firm, gaining experience in workers' compensation and employment law related matters.

She actively serves as co-director for the Georgia Latino Law Foundation, where she recruits and interviews students from Georgia law schools to be placed with a Judge within the Georgia Judicial Circuit. Through this foundation, she also mentors the interns placed within the program.

Rebekah earned her Juris Doctor from Mercer University, where she was active in the Association of Women Law Students, Student Bar Association, and the Immigration Law Society. She received
