Biography

Renee Cho Harper is an associate in our Missoula office where she practices in general liability and medical malpractice matters.

Previously working as a registered nurse at two large academic medical centers and as a legal nurse consultant for both the plaintiff and the defense side, Renee brings a unique experience to her medical malpractice defense practice. She began her career as a lawyer at the Cook County State Attorney's Office in the medical litigation section representing all county health entities, including hospitals and medical clinics, even those in the jail system. She also spent many years at a national law firm based in Illinois representing hospitals, assisted living facilities, nursing home facilities, and outpatient care clinics.

Renee earned her Juris Doctor from Loyola University of Chicago and her Bachelor of Science in Nursing from Georgetown University.
