a local water authority, and he currently serves as city attorney for Mansfield, Georgia. In those capacities, he drafted and reviewed various contracts, including GDOT and multi-million dollar construction contracts; drafted various ordinances and resolutions; and advised local officials on land acquisition, policy, and other matters.

Scott is the Chair of the Environmental, Mass Torts, & Land Use practice group. He has over 17 years' experience handling water supply, environmental, and local government matters with a focus on acquiring permits under Section 404 of the federal Clean Water Act. In this arena, Scott has been involved in nearly 20 water supply reservoirs and numerous private developments, representing those clients in front of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service, and the Georgia Environmental Protection Division. Scott has been a member of the Metropolitan North Georgia Water Planning District's Basin Advisory Council for both the Ocmulgee and Chattahoochee River Basins.

Experience

Business Transactions

Scott focuses his attention on the representation of dentists selling their practice to larger groups and DSOs. In addition, he represents clients, including technology, communications, and energy companies, on a variety of matters and works with them through both day-to-day and extraordinary business transactions. His experiences consist of working with nondisclosure agreements, master development agreements, licensing agreements, financing agreements, due diligence investigations, mergers and acquisitions, and negotiating corporate severances.

In addition to numerous corporate formations, Scott's representative projects include the corporate reorganization of an international mining company, the sale and licensing of technology copyrights, several multi-location franchise development agreements, and M&A representing both buyers and sellers.

Construction

Scott focuses his construction activities on the representation of clients in cases involving the transport of soil and/or water from construction sites. In addition, Scott has represented governmental entities, private owners, construction managers, contractors, subcontractors, engineers, and architects at all stages of construction. He works with AIA and EJOCC documents to achieve an agreed upon balance of risk and reward.

Corporate & Partnership

Scott serves as outside general counsel to numerous private companies and nonprofit entities. Scott works with corporate clients to identify strategic goals and assists them through initial planning, negotiations, and project completion.

He has counseled real estate, environmental, and technology companies through entity formation, project and product development, financing, and the acquisitions and disposition of assets. As general counsel, Scott has advised clients on employment agreements, stock option agreements, non-disclosure agreements, master consulting agreements, and a host of day-to-day and extraordinary situations that arise when consulting businesses.

Dental

Scott’s transactional experience and corporate government experience comes together in the successful representation of dental practice groups. Scott’s experience is grounded in provided sound legal advice to professionals concerning the day-to-day legal matters encountered by a practice including corporate organization and structure, employment agreements, lease
