Non-Disparagement & Confidentiality Clauses Are Illegal in Severance Agreements, NLRB Rules

February 23, 2023

Companies that make former workers promise not to disparage their former employers in exchange for a severance payment are breaking federal law, the National Labor Relations Board (NLRB) ruled Tuesday. What's more, it is also illegal to prevent employees from disclosing the terms of their severance packages, the NLRB said. Background Numerous companies tender severance
