Security Assessment /Active Shooter

To address the alarming epidemic of mass shootings and other violent incidents in the United States, Hall Booth Smith created a dedicated Security Assessment/Active Shooter Practice Group to help clients prepare for these emerging threats while also protecting the safety of employees, customers, company assets and the community.

Our Security Assessment/Active Shooter team includes attorneys who previously served in the military and civilian law enforcement, nurse paralegals and other professionals with medical training, as well as former federal and state prosecutors and seasoned attorneys who are experienced in crisis management and complex litigation.

We frequently work with first responders, law enforcement and other emergency management professionals to participate in active shooter training sessions, mock drills and other instructional programs that ensure we have the very best knowledge and expertise on techniques, strategies and tactics that will benefit our clients.

Hall Booth Smith will assemble and lead a team of experts from law enforcement, facility security, emergency response and dispatch, physicians and nurses, and other pertinent industries to perform a thorough security and risk assessment of your entire business operation, including regional offices, satellite locations and secondary operations such as warehouses or manufacturing facilities.

We will create a customized, confidential report for your business that includes a detailed assessment of weaknesses and risks, along with recommendations that are focused on saving lives, minimizing injuries and containing the amount of destruction that may occur in an active shooter event or other violent attack. We will formally present our findings and answer your questions, and work with your team to select qualified professionals to implement the plan.

Clients often request that our Security Assessment/Active Shooter team stays engaged on an ongoing basis to update and strengthen their plans over time, and to address any new issues or threats that may arise.

You can trust HBS's team of professionals to bring the experience, knowledge, detailed planning and action-oriented recommendations to help you protect your employees, customers and company assets in this new era of unpredictable events.
